From Tuesday August 19, to Saturday August 23, 1760.

King of Prussia's Head Quarters at Dalwitz, August 2.

ON the 22d of last Month, his Prussian Majesty fixed his Camp at Leubnitz, about Seven in the Morning; and, on the 29th, in the Night, the Army decamped from thence, and next Day the King removed his Head Quarters to Unkersdorff. Yesterday the whole Army passed the Elbe over two Bridges near Hirstein, without any Opposition, and encamped with the Right at Wantewitz, and the Left at this Place, upon the Heights behind Gross Dobritz. This Day the Army halts, and, 'tis believed, the Bridges will be withdrawn, as the Army is to march towards Lusatia To-morrow. The King has left General Hulsen in Possession of the Town of Meissen, and in the strong Camp of Schlettau.

From Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick's Head Quarters at Warborg, August 11. Since the Action of the 31st, we are encamped on the Heights of Warborg, with the Dymel in our Front. The Enemy are on the opposite Heights, and separated from us by the River. Nothing of Consequence has happened lately between the respective Armies.

A few Days ago a large Body of the Enemy was detached towards Stadtbergen, a strong Pass which we occupy, as we do likewise all the others on the Dymel: But they were soon obliged to return, without having succeeded in their Attempt to get Possession of it.

General Kielmansegge is posted with a Corps of Troops upon the Weser near Beverungen; and Major General Luckner has been sent with some Battalions and Squadrons on the other Side of that River, to make Head against the Detachments which Prince Xavier might push forward in those Parts. And that General has had the good Fortune not only to drive back the Enemy's Detachments, that had advanced as far as Eimbeck, but Yesterday Morning took their whole Detachment at Nordheim, consisting of 332 Men, Prisoners of War. Colonel Donop likewise at the same Time succeeded in his Attack on a Body of two Thousand of the Volunteers, detached by Marshal Broglio into the Wood of Sababourg, in order to preserve his Communication with Prince Xavier. And notwithstanding the Enemy's advantageous Position in a very thick Wood, they were dislodged from thence, with the Loss of about five Hundred Men in Killed, Wounded, and Prisoners; and of three Pieces of Cannon, which were taken by the Prussian Hussars.

Hague, August 15. We are informed by Letters from Magdebourg, that Prince Henry of Prussia arrived at Glogau, with his Army, on the 1st Instant; and that his Royal Highness having left before that Place Part of his Forces, was marched with the other to Breslau, in order to prevent the Junction of any Austrian Troops with the Russian Army. The same Letters add, That General Laudohn had appeared before that Town the 30th past, with a Corps of about 15000 Men; and that as the Prussian Commandant, Major General Taventzien, had refused, upon several Summons, to surrender, the Austrians begun, on the 1st Instant, to throw Bombs into the Town, which had reduced the King of Prussia's Palace into Ashes, as well as the finest Streets in the City; but that as General Laudohn had no heavy Artillery with him, and began to be in Want of Ammunition of all Kinds, he was obliged to retire on the 4th in the Morning, directing his March towards Lissa and Schweidnitz. The King of Prussia was arrived the 6th Instant at Bautzen; Marshal Daun was at Weissenberg, at the Distance of one German Mile from his Prussian Majesty.

Our last Letters from Brunswick, which are of the 8th Instant, mention the Arrival of his Serene Highness the Landgrave of Hesse in that City.

Hague, August 19. After having received the News of the King of Prussia's Arrival at Bautzen, on the 6th Instant, and of Marshal Daun's at Weissenberg, in order to intercept him in his Passage into Silesia; we have just had the unexpected Account, that his Prussian Majesty reached Lignitz, in Silesia, on the 11th Instant; having executed his March to that Place without any Loss in Men or Baggage, and beat up several Austrian Detachments in his Way thither.

Prince Henry of Prussia, according to the last Accounts, had passed through the Town of Breslau, crossed the Oder, marched forward, and reached Drachenberg on the Frontiers of Poland.
